

Flow chart representing utilization of bridge species for production of stable homozygous introgression lines. Crossing between a bridge species and the wild species produces an F1 hybrid, which is colchicine-treated to induce chromosome doubling and a synthetic amphidiploid, which is then crossed to the crop species as the recurrent parent